Another attraction announced for the evening was the presence of Mr. Robert McWade, the distinguished actor, and company, for supper, after the performance at the Opera House. We have no hesitation in declaring this the strong card of the evening. Bob's rendition of the vagabond "Rip" has made him a world wide reputation; and as his stage business was so familiar to the public, all present last night were on the qua circ to see him in propria persona. To-morrow night, at the Fourth Street Church, Dr. George will speak of the unity of the Holy Scriptures as demonstrating their divine origin. This is an interesting topic for discussion at the present time.

The Baraar.—The Holl Crowded Again fit of the Children's Home has proved an unqualified success. All day yesterday, and until past midnight last night. Washington Hall was througed with people. Every grade of society, and every class of people, almost, was represented in the crowded throng that was drawn together through Charity. All were there to do what they could, according to their circumstances, to benefit a worthy charitable institution.

Fully 300 persons act down to dinner in the hall, and many came late and went away without eating, owing to the crowd about the tables. There was a similar rush at the supper table; and, in fact, our worthy citizens developed such wonderful capacity for eating that the ladies in charge of the supper tables were kept busy until past midnight, and only ceased of perations when it became evident that the garrison was running short of provisions.

The doll wedding was the great attraction last night. A canopy had been erected in the northeast corner of the hall, where the nuptials were solemnized. This department was in charge of Mrs. Harry List, Miss Mollie List, Misses Mary and Amelia Paxton, and Messrs, Giddings, Cummins and Dickey. There was a mountain the preacher was a mountain the presence of the person with the protein made by Mr. Wm. Wilkinson, the doorkeeper, of receipts amounting to nearly $50. He hoped, further, that all present on this occasion would enjoy themselves, and that they might "live long und been happy."

Dr. Mott continues: By exposing these injurious and unwholesome baking powders, the public must not be frightened from using baking powders when properly made. In fact, baking powders are a great convenience, as the constituents are so combined that their use is always attended with success; and there is no danger of biscuits made with tem having an alkaline taste, or being impregnated with yellow specks or streaks, as is often the case when ordinary cream of tartar and soda are used. This results from the fact that the ordinary cream of tartar found in the market is adulterated from 10 to 90 per cent with foreign substances; consequently it becomes necessary to change the proportion to be used with every new lot, which can only be correctly arrived at by a chemical analysis of the cream of tartar.
